THE FEMALE LUNATIC ASYLUM.

INVESTIGATION BY A BOARD OF PHYSICIANS RE-GARDING ALLEGED ABUSES IN THE HART'S ISLAND INSTITUTION-THE CASES OF EMMA MOREISON AND CAROLINE WEIL.

The Board of Consulting Physicians appointed by the Commissioners of Charities and Correction for the lunatic asylums under their charge, having received a communication from the Commissioners, asking them to investigate certain alteged abuses in the Female Lunatic Asylum, at Blackwell's Island, proceeded there yesterday afternoon about two o'clock and made an investigation. The Board consists of Dr. Joseph R. Wood, president: Dr. Montrose A. Pallen, secretary, and Drs. E. G. Janeway, Austin Piint, Jr., A. L. Loomis, C. J. Pardu, T. P. White, Allen McLean Hamilton and Whitman V. White. Of these there were present day Drs. Wood, Pallen, Hamilton and White. The secretary opened the proceedings by stating the slleged abuses which were to be investigated. The first case was that of a woman named Emma Morrison who, it was stated, gave birth to a child while the was bound in a strait jacket; and the second that or a woman named Caroline Weil, who was alleged to have died of starvation on the 19th of

Dr. Strew, superintendent of the asylum, was the first witness. In answer to a number of questions be stated, substantially, that when Emma Morrison first came to the asylum she was accompanied by her father, and her history was taken from him. He assured Dr. Kingston that she had never been married, and without doubt was a virtuous

Dr. Wood—What about that poisoning case, Doctor?

Dr. Strew—Maggie was cleaning out a cupboard in which this poison was. It was arsenic mixed with butter and sugar, and instead of taking it out of the way she left it in the swill barrol. There one of the patients found it, and I suppose thinking it was pudding, as it was in a pudding pan, cat some of it. The pan was seen in her hand by one of the nurses and was taken away from her. It was not thought that the patient had taken any of the poison at the time, and it was not suspected that she had done so until after her dinner, when she was seized with violent retching. She died a few hours afterward.

Dr. Kingston was then examined as to the case of Emma Morrison. His evidence was substantially the same as that of Dr. Strew. He also stated that he never saw any necessity for an examination; she was in the habit of eating the bed clothing and even the grass in the yard when she was let out, and he considered at the time that the material she put in her stomach was the cause of much of the derangement therein; when she was much of the derangement therein; when she was first taken with cramps, on the night of October II, it was not even suspected that she was about to give birth to a child; if an examination had been made and her condition discovered there would have been no difference in the course of treatment, except that she would have been sent to the hospital at the

that she would have been sent to the hospital at the proper time.

Dr. Livingston S. Hinchley corroborated the statement of Dr. Kingston in regard to the case of Emma Morrison, and said it was an accident over which they had no control.

Dr. Leonard F. Pitkin, who attended Caroline Weil, was then called and read out the record of her death. Caroline Weil died at half-past eleven P. M., October 10, 1879. The certificate showed as the primary cause of her death chronic meningitis; direct cause, ordema of the lungs. He stated positively that she did not die of want of food, for she only missed three meals and had food on the day of her death. She was plump and not the least emaciated. He thought the story originated in a spirit of malice. The nurse, Maggie Modeller, had, he alleged, threatened she would injure him wherever and whenever she could. Three of the nurses were also called and corroborated Dr. Pitkin's statement.

The investigation was then adjourned and the The investigation was then adjourned and the Board will report to the Commissioners next week.

FATAL JEALOUSY.

A BARTENDER DRIVES HIS WIFE INTO THE STREET AND SHOOTS HER BETWEEN THE

John Madill, of No. 64 Oliver street, shot his wife Catherine last night while in a, fit of jealous rage. He is a bartender, and about two months ago left his wife and went to live at No. 26 Canal street. He then entered an application in Court for a bill of divorce nd of infidelity, and the case is still pending. Three weeks ago he took his four little children away from her and placed thom in charge of his mother. Of course his wife resented this and whenever they met a stormy scene occurred, in which abuse was exchanged by both husband and wife. Last night, at ten o'clock, Mrs. Madill bade good night to Mary Jane Riley, a young woman living in the house, and retired to bed. A moment afterward her husband entered the room. He sed to be much excited and had a revolver in his seemed to be much excited and had a revolver in his hand. "You —," said he, "I'll kill you!" and fired at his wife, who jumped out of bed and screamed for mercy. Madill fired another shot and hit the wall. The neighbors rushed into the hail on hearing the noise, and Mrs. Madill ran down stairs, preceded by Mary Riley and followed by her husband. On gaining the street Mrs. Madill ran toward Oak street, gasping out, "For God's sake, Mary, get a policeman."

Reaching the corner of Oak street the woman, who was in deshabille, paused for a moment, and when Madill fired again she fell on her lace crying in agony. The ball had struck her spinal column between the shoulders. Madill ran along Oliver street, but was captured a few minutes afterward and taken to the Fourth precinct station house. He retused to make my statement, but charged the girl, Riley, with having caused all the trouble by having led his wite lastray. An ambulance was sont for and Mrs. Madill was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital, where it was found that the ball had struck the vertebrae of the spine, glancing upward and lodging at the base of the skull. She accused her husband of shooting her and soon became unconscious. At a late hour she was nearly paralyzed. The physicians at the hospital say she cannot recover. It is alleged that Madill was tracted about a year ago for having attampted to poison his wife with strychnine. The neighbors say that his jealousy is not groundless, and Mary Riley informed the Hanath reporter that a short time ago Mrs. Madill admitted the charge of unfaithfulness to be true. Madill has borne a good reputation.

Two Italians, named Dominico Antonio Bontino and Vincenzo Blanco, quarrelled last night in Maurie Florentine's saloon at No. 550 Broome street, over a game of cards. The dispute ended in a fight and suring the mele the former stabled the latter in the throat with a large clasp knife and inflicted a serious wound. The injured man was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital. His assallant ran out of the sa-leon before the police arrived. A detective two hours afterward succeeded in arresting him as he was about leaving the residence of a friend at No. 46 Columbia street, Brooklyn. The prisoner was confronted with Bianco, who positively identified him as the man that had cut him. Bontine said he was twenty-four years old, a confectioner by trade, and gave his address as at No. 78 Thompson street. A number of persons who witnessed the stabling told the police that it was done in self-defence, as Bianco was the aggressor.

WITH MARTIAL HONORS.

THE CITY'S LAST TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF GENERAL HOOKER-THE BODY VIEWED BY AN IMMENSE CROWD-MILITARY AND RE-LIGIOUS CEREMONIES.

The Governor's Room in the City Hall has been the scene of many solemn spectacles. Renowned military geniuses, statesmen and distinguished men of letters have on various occasions lain in state in that historic chamber, and the Corporation of New York has paid municipal honors to their remains. But soldom has homage been rendered to the dead But seldom has homage been rendered to the dead in such an impressive manner as it was yesterday to the departed seldier, General Joseph Hooker. The scene in the neighborhood of the City Hall at about noon recalled to mind the displays in honor of President Lincoln and Horace Greeley. The crowd filled the entire space in front of the City Hall, and reached as far as Broadway and Printing House square on either side. There were fully twenty thousand persons at one time or another within a short distance of the building, within the portals of which had previously gathered a large number of well-known army officers, in whose charge the arrangements for the funeral had been placed. In the her father, and her history was taken from him. He assured Dr. Kingston that she had neved been married, and without doubt was a virtuous woman and atways had been so.
